New Gov. Charlie Baker takes Massachussetts reins

New era. Baker began his term as Massachusetts governor Thursday with a speech that stressed accountability and efficiency.

Charlie Baker was sworn in as the state's 72nd governor early Thursday afternoon.

Baker, in his first address as the state's chief executive, told the packed House Chamber at the State House that Massachusetts needs to become more business friendly and efficient. He said he intends to streamline regulatory requirements for start-ups and small businesses.

Residents shouldn't have to wait for hours at the registry or be confused and let down by the state's Health Connector, said Baker.

"We're nowhere near our full potential," he said.

Baker said he wants to ensure transparency in health care costs in the state. Similar health services for similar individuals can vary in cost by as much as 300 percent, he said.

"This must change," he said.

The Swampscott Republican pledged to protect cities and towns from cuts to local aid funding, pushed to increase the number of Massachusetts charter schools — he said thousands of children are on waiting lists for such schools — and sympathized with the more than 1,500 homeless families in the state that are staying in temporary accommodations like hotels or motels.

He said his top priorities are to close the state's budget gap, which he said is more than $500 million, confront the state's ongoing opiate addiction crisis, revitalize urban centers and close the education achievement gap. He invoked Massachusetts native John F. Kennedy, stressed the need for bipartisanship and said he wants to run a government that is transparent and accountable.

"If we're honest with ourselves, we can't blame the deficit on lack of revenue. We have to recognize that this is a spending problem," he said.

Someone then yelled out from the chamber's gallery, "Blame it on the former governor!"

Baker said his administration would "hold the line on taxes."

"We're already demanding enough from hardworking people," he said.

Baker defeated then-Attorney General Martha Coakley, a Democrat, by a margin of just under 2 percentage points, in the general election last November. He succeeds two-term Democrat Deval Patrick, who beat Baker in his first run for governor four years ago.

Baker was sworn in, surrounded by his family — his wife Lauren and his children Charlie, AJ and Caroline — by new Senate President Stanley Rosenberg.

GOP luminaries were in the crowd, including former Massachusetts Govs. Mitt Romney, William Weld and Jane Swift and current New Jersey Gov. Chris Christie.

Baker says:

- "First, we must have courage to set partisanship aside and embrace the best ideas and solutions, no matter which side of the aisle they come from.
- "Second, we must have judgment to make our government as efficient, responsive and innovative as it can be.
- "Third, we must have integrity to assure accountability and transparency because when we make honest mistakes, they must be acknowledged and corrected.
- "And finally, we must have dedication to serve the best interest of the public and only the public."

Quoted

"There's no single initiative that can start and sustain a job-creating economy. But there is clear evidence that we're too complex, too expensive, and too slow to move and make decisions. On this we must do better."

MBTA attack. Police search for suspect who assaulted bus driver, saying, 'I'm going to kill you'

Transit police are searching for a man they say assaulted and threatened an MBTA bus driver on two separate occasions.

MBTA officials have released surveillance images of the suspect, who allegedly spat on the driver of a Route 33 bus on the afternoon of Oct. 21 as it sat at the intersection of River Street and George Street in Boston.

It was not clear what prompted the assault.

Two months later, on Dec. 18, the same man allegedly entered the Route 33 bus as it stopped on River Street in Hyde Park. According to transit police, the driver recognized the passenger as the man who had spat on him.

"When the bus operator opened the bus doors, the depicted male subject attempted to board the bus. The bus operator, in fear, quickly shut the door as the male subject shouted, 'When I see you again I'm going to kill you.'"

The suspect is described as a black man between 20 and 25 years old, with sandy brown hair.

Anyone with information can contact transit police at 617-222-1050.

The MBTA recently reported that assaults on drivers were down by 32 percent in 2014 compared to 2013.

No Pants subway ride set for Sunday

Despite the bone-chilling temperatures expected this weekend, the 8th annual No Pants MBTA Ride is slated to happen Sunday afternoon.

The event, organized by Boston SOS , brings together riders who dare to bare skin on the T. The No Pants Subway Ride is a global humor event started by Improv Everywhere in New York in 2002.

The start location will be named at 2 p.m., Friday at www.BostonSOS.org. METRO

Arctic blast. Boston braces for days of freezing temperatures, high winds

Temperatures dipped below freezing Thursday. / NICOLAUS CZARNECKI, METRO

Temperatures dipped dangerously low Thursday — below freezing — and though expected to pick up this weekend, there is no end in sight for the painful chill that has struck the region.

The Boston Public Schools canceled classes Thursday after Mayor Marty Walsh said the sub-zero wind chill made it too dangerous for school kids to wait for their buses.

Thursday afternoon no announcement had been made on whether schools would reopen Friday, which may bring morning snow showers, gusty winds and a high near 29, according to The National Weather Service.

Temperatures will hover in the mid-20s through Monday before rising into the mid-30s early next week.

During this cold snap, city officials have are urging residents to look out for one another.

"I'm personally asking each and every single Boston resident to look after their neighbor, be it someone you see outdoors or someone living next door," Walsh said in a recent winter safety warning.

There were no reports of hypothermia or other weather-related emergencies by late Thursday.

The MBTA reported only minor to moderate delays on the subways and bus lines.

"Considering the extraordinarily adverse conditions, the transit system performed quite well this morning, said MBTA spokesman Joe Pesaturo.

Reading material

Dunham's a fan!

So we noticed we made a little appearance in your book.
I'm a big fan, I love to read Metro on the subway and it's been a big part of my growing up in New York.

Was there much consultation with the illustrator about that one?
She's one of my best friends from childhood, so I think she kind of just knew. I think she knew that if I were going to be hiding my face on the subway as a pretend spy, that Metro would probably be how I would do it. Plus, there's the famous dudes who aggressively hand out Metros in the subway, thus ensuring that all New Yorkers read it, which I think is expert marketing, and really awesome.

CREDIT: JOANA AVILLEZ FROM LENA DUNHAM'S "NOT THAT KIND OF GIRL"

All grown up

"Girls" returns this Sunday at 9 p.m. on HBO. For more with Dunham, including what's in store for the other girls, head to www.metro.us. /MARK SCHAFER, HBO

Interview. In the new season of Lena Dunham's 'Girls,' Hannah Horvath gets it together...kind of.

Say goodbye to kombucha cafes and hipsters with handlebar mustaches. The new season of HBO's "Girls" has two big changes in store for antihero Hannah Horvath. She's not in New York, and she'll be away from her friends for the first time in the show's run. Hannah, who made the decision to attend an MFA program in Iowa at the end of last season, is now faced with a distant support system — this is, after all, the girl who even goes to the bathroom with her besties. Series creator Lena Dunham opens up about FOMO, real life boyfriend Jack Antonoff and finding love in your 20s.

How will the dynamics between the girls change with Hannah in Iowa?
Because of modern technology, as Adam says, there's lots of FaceTiming and phone calling, but it is the first time they haven't all been within a stone's throw of each other. You definitely get a sense of what the friend group is like without Hannah in it. I kind of like it because usually you get such, like, "Why are these people friends with Hannah? She's such a pain in the ass and she's such a narcissist." But once she's absent, you see the role she's playing in her friend group, and it's lovely.

Will she be experiencing some FOMO about her friends in NYC?
For sure, there's a lot of FOMO happening. Plus, I wouldn't say she's the most skilled at making new friends, so there's that too.

What's the theme of the new season?
Growth and making adult decisions, but realizing that just because you make the right decision doesn't mean you're always going to get the right result.

Do you think it's possible to find lasting love in your 20s?
It depends on who you are and what you want. I think we're trained to think, especially women, that we're either supposed to be joyfully, rabidly single, or completely committed. There's a lot of gray areas that can be very healthy to inhabit and I think it's all about what works for you personally. I really like being in a committed relationship, and I'm really lucky that I found someone who really understands me and what I do. But I also have a lot of friends who seem like they have benefited wildly from being single in their 20s and that shouldn't be denied either. I'm a big proponent of different strokes for different folks, but I definitely don't think it's impossible to find someone you'll spend the rest of your life with, and I also don't think it's necessary to find them, either.

As someone who tweets prolifically, and is called the voice of a generation, how would you describe your generation in 140 characters?
Not as apathetic as our stepdads think we are.

LISA WEIDENFELD

What should win the Golden Globes

Awards predictions are dumb. Except when screamingly obvious, no one has a clue what will win, and such coverage is blatant clickbait. Not that mere opinion pieces are much more useful, but at least you get to talk about the quality of people's work — and point to those who may be flying under the radar. Here's who/what we hope will win Golden Globes this Sunday. MATT PRIGGE, NED EHRBAR AND LISA WEIDENFELD

'Selma'

Best Actress, Drama

Julianne Moore, 'Still Alice'

Oh man, is this the saddest movie: one where Moore, at her most personable, suffers mental deterioration via early Alzheimer's. Not that it's just a stunt.

SONY PICTURES CLASSICS

Best Actor, Drama

Jake Gyllenhaal, 'Nightcrawler'

There's a lot of strong competition in this category, but the onetime Donnie Darko impresses most for his chilling (and very funny) embodiment of a driven freelancer as a sociopath.

Best Director

Wes Anderson, 'The Grand Budapest Hotel'

It can be easy to take the eccentric Anderson for granted, but this is work that, even more than usual, is both highly amusing and bottomlessly melancholy.

Best Picture, Comedy or Musical

'Birdman'

We're not entirely sold on whether this is a comedy, but this is definitely a feat and well worth celebrating.

Best Actor, Comedy or Musical

Ralph Fiennes, 'The Grand Budapest Hotel'

Sure, everyone's all about Michael Keaton in "Birdman" this year, but Fiennes' finicky, philandering concierge easily outshines him.

Best Actress, Comedy or Musical

Emily Blunt, 'Into the Woods'

In an overstuffed ensemble that includes Meryl Streep, Blunt more than holds her own. And this gives us a chance to mention her equally awesome work in "Edge of Tomorrow." You really should see "Edge of Tomorrow."

Best Supporting Actor

Edward Norton, 'Birdman'

Sure, we have a sneaking suspicion that Norton is really just playing himself as the cocksure, self-centered Broadway thespian terrorizing Michael Keaton. But that doesn't mean he isn't still fantastic.

Best Screenplay

Wes Anderson, 'The Grand Budapest Hotel'

Let's hear it for Wes Anderson reaching peak Wes Anderson-ness, because the results are an absolute delight — and should warm the hearts of the Eurocentric HFPA.

Best TV Series, Drama

'The Good Wife'

Procedurals are supposed to settle into patterns and not evolve too much as they age. Luckily, that is not a concept this show is familiar with. Years into its run, it's still one of the best dramas on TV, and its characters continue to grow in organic, compelling ways.

Best actor in a TV series, Drama

Dominic West, 'The Affair'

Did you know the Emmys and Golden Globes never recognized West for "The Wire"? Let's fix that. His performance in this Hamptons mystery/thriller/drama/romance is a good place to start.

Best Supporting Actress

Patricia Arquette, 'Boyhood'

Even ignoring the dedication of sticking with a character for 12 years, this is a real, thoroughly realized portrayal of maternal and ultimately existential angst from a performer only getting better.

IFC FILMS

Best actress in a TV series, Drama

Viola Davis, 'How to Get Away with Murder'

Look, if your show transforms Thursday night TV, we think you deserve some credit for it. Plus, we're pretty sure Viola Davis is never not fantastic.

MITCHELL HAASETH/ABC

Best TV Series, Musical or Comedy

'Transparent'

Funny, tragic, unusual, honest — the list of accolades you can throw at this show could go on forever. And it probably will, considering how confident the first season is.

Best Actress in a TV Series, Musical or Comedy

Gina Rodriguez, 'Jane the Virgin'

We'd love to see an upset in this category over the more established stars. And Rodriguez, an unknown before this show, is making a pretty big splash.

Best Actor in a TV Series, Musical or Comedy

Jeffrey Tambor, 'Transparent'

This might be a first: a man winning for playing a woman. But Tambor, an always welcome presence, is doing some of the best work of his career as the trans character Maura Pfefferman in this Amazon original.

Review. 'Red Hot' fails to capture the real patriot

Ivins has a chat about her old pal "Shrub." / MARK S. HOWARD

If you go

'Red Hot Patriot'

Through Jan. 31
Lyric Stage
140 Clarendon St.
$25 to $66
617-585-5678
www.lyricstage.com

Molly Ivins was an old-school, ultra-liberal journalist with a fondness for attacking anyone even slightly right of moderate with her pithy wit.

A one-person show about the brazen Texan who lived among the good old boys she so freely criticized should be a hoot, no matter which side of the political fence you're on. But "Red Hot Patriot: The Kick-Ass Wit of Molly Ivins," despite a decent production by the Lyric Stage Company, never quite captures the chutzpah that made Ivins both appealing and appalling enough to warrant her own show.

The 75-minute piece takes place in a newsroom where Ivins plugs away at a story about her father, the authoritarian Republican thorn in her side. When the AP teletype machine rings (signifying an important story), highlights of Ivins' own life and career spit out instead, beginning her trip down memory lane.

Odds are, if the woman who loved to take swipes at any deserving offender lived to see this schmaltzy plot-driver, she would've had a few words to say about it. Suffice to say, it feels contrived.

Though playwrights (and twin sisters) Margaret and Allison Engel use some of her best lines, ("If his IQ slips any lower, we'll have to water him twice a day") and mention her dubbing George W. Bush "Shrub," they never capture the "kick-ass wit" the title promises. A more substantive look at the woman beneath the heavy-drinking rabble-rouser would've added much-needed depth and weight to her story.

Karen MacDonald proves up to the task with her embodiment of Ivins, but it would take more than these zingers to turn her into someone you really care about. NICK DUSSAULT

Horoscope

♑ Capricorn | Dec. 22-Jan. 20.
Use your willpower. Overspending and overindulgence will cause unhappy and unnecessary setbacks. Self-control will bring you greater satisfaction.

♒ Aquarius | Jan. 21-Feb. 18.
Once you have made up your mind, stick with it. Second-guessing and self-doubt will confound those around you, leading to continued strife.

♓ Pisces | Feb. 19-March 20.
Keep it simple. Be mindful of the circumstances around you and remain informed about your adversaries. Domestic problems will evaporate if you are diplomatic. Make love, not war.

♈ Aries | March 21-April 20.
You will be intrigued by different cultures or beliefs. Quench your thirst for knowledge by scouring the Internet or your local library. Expand your outlook.

♉ Taurus | April 21-May 21.
Promote your ideas every chance you get in order to make progress. Potential partners will surface at seminars or group discussions. If you get involved in your community, you will get something in return.

♊ Gemini | May 22-June 20.
Strive to keep an optimistic outlook. An unexpected turn of events will leave you wondering which way to turn. An elderly friend will provide the answer to a mysterious question.

♋ Cancer | June 21-July 22.
Your persistence will pay off. If you give up every time someone disagrees with you, nothing will be gained. Stick with the basics, and proceed one step at a time.

♌ Leo | July 23-Aug. 22.
A financial gain is within your reach. You will get your point across effectively by sticking to the facts. Exaggeration will backfire and damage your status.

♍ Virgo | Aug. 23-Sept. 22.
Irreconcilable differences due to an emotional confrontation are apparent. Make concessions to prevent a situation from escalating. Compromise may be difficult, but you should weigh the pros and cons.

♎ Libra | Sept. 23-Oct. 22.
Preparation and concentration will enable you to market an unusual idea. Keep your plans under wraps until the final product can be revealed without a flaw.

♏ Scorpio | Oct. 23-Nov. 21.
Think before you speak. Making empty promises will cost you your credibility. Dealing with an elderly relative will be trying but rewarding if you step up.

♐ Sagittarius | Nov. 22-Dec. 21.
Don't hesitate to take on a challenge. If someone is trying to make you look bad, your adaptability and resiliency will help you demonstrate what you are capable of doing. EUGENIA LAST

Letters to the editor

Not in his name

More than a dozen people were killed in a terrorist attack on the publication office of a satirical magazine, Charlie Hebdo, in Paris, France. This magazine is known to have printed controversial material in the past regarding Islam and the Prophet Muhammad. As a Muslim belonging to the Ahmadiyya Muslim Community, we condemn the killing of innocents in the name of Islam. This attack and those who carried out this heinous crime have nothing to do with Islam as the Quran clearly states, "the killing of one ... is like the killing of all mankind" (5:33). We condemn the perpetrators in the strongest of terms and extend our condolences to the bereaved.

Be considerate in polite society

Let me first say that I do not condone violence for any reason except personal self-defense. I must say, however, that those who are in positions where they have great access to the general public are obliged to carefully consider the sacred beliefs of others; those whose beliefs may be quite different than their own. Everything has limits in a polite society, including art and self-expression.
LEWIS WALSH, VIA EMAIL

Cycle of kindess

To the nameless man who walked behind me in the North End, and gave me a $100 to buy something nice for Christmas; I want you to know that I gave that money to a family who needed it the most. Please know that your kindness really touched my heart, and the family I gave the money to as well. In an the era of 24/7 news coverage, and where the public is constantly bombarded with negative event on the local, national, and global level, we seem to forget the unsung heroes who are making differences in their community.

NFL Playoffs

A history of hatred

Ravens defensive end Terrell Suggs makes no bones about it, he hates the Patriots. After Baltimore beat the Patriots in the 2012 AFC title game, Suggs shouted the following: "These are the most arrogant pricks in the world, starting from Belichick on down ... shut them out in the second half. Tell them to have fun at the Pro Bowl. Arrogant (expletive) ... Ever since Spygate they haven't been able to win." Suggs has been far from a choir boy on and off the field since entering the league in 2003. The former NFL defensive player of the year has been accused of multiple domestic violence incidents, one in which his girlfriend claimed that Suggs held her down on the floor, poured bleach on her and kicked her.

3 Storylines to watch as Pats face Ravens

NFL Playoffs. The Patriots once again clash in the postseason with Baltimore.

What would a trip to the postseason be without a visit from the Ravens? The tough, in-your-face, very-easy-to-hate Ravens.

Baltimore is back for an AFC divisional round game at Gillette Stadium on Saturday (4:35 p.m., NBC), and the fact that the Ravens have "been there, won that" in New England — twice — over the last five seasons, gives some people cause for concern.

But Ray Lewis isn't walking through that door, folks. Ray Rice isn't walking through that door. The Ravens are a different team than they were the last time these two met in the playoffs. The Patriots are different too — and they're better.

So let's get into what to watch for as the Patriots look to advance to their ninth AFC Championship Game under Bill Belichick.

STEVE SMITH SR. IS SURE TO SEE PLENTY OF DARRELLE REVIS ON SATURDAY. GETTY IMAGES

Lonely island boy

Being stranded on an island has got to be a very lonely time. It's enough to make anybody go crazy. Luckily for Ravens wide receiver Steve Smith Sr., he's already a little crazy. That might come in handy for him on Saturday when Darrelle Revis looks to populate his island with one more sorry soul. Smith, although a little short in stature, is never short on words. He infamously told then-Patriots corner Aqib Talib to "Ice up, son!" after a game in which his Panthers beat the Patriots last season. Smith may finally be at a loss for words if Revis does end up on Smith exclusively. As for receiver Torrey Smith, Brandon Browner and Devin McCourty should be able to handle that. Joe Flacco has his work cut out for him.

By the numbers

13,262

Ravens receiver Steve Smith Sr. has 13,262 yards receiving in his 14-year NFL career. Smith registered the eighth 1,000-plus yard receiving campaign of his career this season in Baltimore as he caught 79 balls for 1,065 yards.

ROB GRONKOWSKI GETTY IMAGES

Gronk, always the difference maker

The Patriots will take the bubble wrap off of Rob Gronkowski shortly before kick-off on Saturday, as he's clearly the most important non-Brady piece to their offense. They didn't have Gronk in last year's postseason or in their loss to the Ravens in the 2012 AFC Championship Game. In fact, Gronkowski hasn't played in a playoff game from beginning to end for the Patriots since New England's loss in Super Bowl XLVI to the Giants — and even in that game he was banged up. Now, the tight end is believed to be fully healthy, and as we've all seen this season, poses huge issues for opposing defenders, some of which look more like bowling pins as Gronk rumbles down the field.

Line 'em up

We aren't breaking any news here: The Patriots' offensive line has been the biggest concern for this team all season. Has it improved since the start of the year? Absolutely. Then again, it couldn't have gotten much worse from what we saw in September. Dan Connolly and Nate Solder appear healthy and ready to go, and that's a good thing because it won't be easy to stop the likes of Haloti Ngata, Terrell Suggs (12 sacks) and Elvis Dumervil (17 sacks). Interestingly enough, Tom Brady was not sacked in the Patriots' 28-13 loss in the playoff two years ago. That's not to say the Baltimore defense didn't disrupt him in that one as Brady had a 62.3 QB rating.

NFL Playoffs

Divisional round will also be rivalry weekend

We've weeded out the crap as the playoffs inch closer to identifying the best team in the NFL. The divisional round kicks off Saturday afternoon and features three classic matchups and one David vs. Goliath game during arguably the best football weekend of the year. Here's the slate:

Panthers at Seahawks (-11)
There hasn't been a back-to-back Super Bowl champion in 10 seasons, but the Seahawks have the matchup they want as they begin their trek for No. 2 against the Panthers at 8:15 on FOX Saturday night. Seattle's defense is scary good. Over the last six games of the season (all of them wins), the Seahawks allowed just three touchdowns, 39 total points and kept five of six opponents to seven points or less. They also did not allow a fourth-quarter touchdown.

Cowboys at Packers (-6)
Perhaps the marquee matchup of the weekend pits two offensive powers (both 12-4) against one another on the tundra of Lambeau Field. Tony Romo and the Cowboys pulled off a dramatic comeback win at home over the Lions a week ago, and look to slow down the Packers' high powered (30.4 ppg) offense, well rested and itching for a fight. And though the Dallas defense may not be particularly well-equipped to slow down Aaron Rodgers and the Packers offense, the Cowboys may be able to keep pace. They averaged a league-best 34.4 points per game on the road, going 8-0 during the regular season.

Andrew Luck and Peyton Manning will meet again in the final showdown of divisional round weekend. / GETTY IMAGES

Colts at Broncos (-7)
Peyton Manning will host his Indianapolis replacement, Andrew Luck, in the final divisional contest (4:40 p.m. Sunday, CBS) in a rematch of a game won by the Broncos way back in Week 1, 31-24. Denver had 22 players listed on its injury report prior to its Week 17 win over Oakland, but the Broncos, with their 38-year-old quarterback, are feeling a bit more healthy heading into this game.
